

Around town

Not chalk, but cheese

Matthew Mason hold the children spellbound

It wasn't only the cows who were penned in

The children got the chance to see the handling sheds, milking parlour, day-old calves, the food stores, slurry management and to experience something of a very large working farm. The day was finished off with a simple, cheese inspired menu and lots of empty plates!

Matthew shows off some of the newly born calves

Above and below: Jack in the Green chef Matthew Mason took 30 children of Year 4 from West Hill Primary School to visit Quicke's Cheeses at Newton St Cyres for a fun day learning about how high quality Devon cheeses are made, and most importantly how they taste

The cheesy meal went down a treat

The fresh outdoor air certainly had an effect on some